

backed by accurate powers of insight.

Moreover, individual researchers must recognize the changes of the times and change themselves accordingly. It is of course still essential to set high targets and deepen one's knowledge of one's own field of specialty, but it has also become important to broaden our vision and exchange with other fields of study, to exchange ideas and methods, and to exchange information.